Had Been Named to Run Again

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—Mayor Gaynor's last public utterance was in a wireless message sent from the Baltic last Friday to the New York Evening Mail, as follows:

"Steamer Baltic, September 5.—The rent payers and taxpayers of New York city will not throw the government of their city back into the hands of an outside king grafter. Nor will they throw it into the control of a vulgar gang of grafters, all of one stripe, such as met at Delmonico's. Give them the shovel! No king, no clown. Shall rule this town. That day has gone forever. (Signed) "W. J. GAYNOR."

He referred to Murphy of Tammany hall, who met a few of his sub-leaders at Delmonico's and chose Edward E. McCall as the Tammany candidate for mayor. The shovel was the emblem of the new Gaynor campaign and was meant to typify the building of new subways.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—As the indirect result of an attempted assassination three years ago, William J. Gaynor died at one o'clock yesterday afternoon, on board the liner Baltic, enroute to Europe, and the news coming by wireless not only stunned the city but confused an already almost hopelessly confused political situation.

During the last few weeks Gaynor had suffered great agony from the assassin's bullet, which lodged in his neck. He had been subjected to fits of coughing which exhausted him and weakened his heart. The ship's doctor ascribed the death to heart failure. Gaynor was accompanied only by his son, Rufus W. Gaynor, and by a nurse.

ROBBER MISSES BUNDLE OF MONEY

Bold Thief at Gautsch Shoe Store Gets Small Change but Doesn't Find Day's Receipts

TAUSCHE HARDWARE IS ENTERED

Burglar Makes Entrance While Employee Is at Work in Office but Eludes Policemen

Entering the shoe store of L. E. Gautsch at 308 Main street in a maned evidencing unlimited nerve and then getting but a few cents where he might have secured nearly fifty dollars, is the hard luck of a burglar who worked La Crosse last night.

That the same man attempted robbery of the V. Tausche Hardware company, South Fourth street, earlier in the evening, is the belief of the police. In the latter instance he broke into the building while Ed Hovind, a clerk, was working in the office, but was frightened away.

At the Gautsch store the burglar entered the basement and then came into the store through the trap door. In making his entrance to the store he was forced to knock over a shelf ladder which was placed over the door.

The cash register was rifled and a few dollars in small change taken. Books and papers were ransacked in search of more funds before the robber departed.

Before locking up in the evening Mr. Gautsch had taken the day's receipts, amounting to many dollars, and for safety had secreted them in a shoe box and placed the box on a shelf. This the robber failed to find. The robbery is believed to have occurred after midnight and no trace of the bold thief has been found.

Enters Tausche's
At the Tausche Hardware company there are three means of entrance: front off of Fourth street, rear off of the alley between Fourth and Fifth streets, and by a small alley leading from Jay street. It was the latter route chosen by the thief who entered the cellar and got into the store. Ed Hovind, a clerk, was at work in the office at 9:45 o'clock and heard the robber moving about. He rushed to the police station and Officer Horschak with another policeman guarded the Fourth street and alley entrances. The robber, however, made his escape by the Jay street alley. He secured no loot.

MAY SEEK LIGHT ON MOTIVES

Rumored that Webber's Attorneys May Attempt to Unearth Reasons for Alleged 'Harassing'

The fire and police commission today decided upon Wednesday evening, September 17, as the time for the public hearing on the charges of insubordination preferred against Police Chief John Webber by Mayor Ori J. Sorenson.

This was the announcement today of Secretary L. C. Colman.

The hearing will start promptly at 7:30 o'clock in the council chamber at the city hall. Whether or not witnesses will be subpoenaed is not definitely known. It is probable, however, that a few will be asked to testify to the actual issuance of the order by the mayor and the presentation of Webber's proposition, for arbitration by the commission of the dispute as to who is the legal head of the police department.

Chief Webber will be represented by counsel before the commission and it is expected that the city attorney may be expected to handle the case for the administration.

Some excitement was thrown into official circles today when it was hinted that the mayor would be closely quizzed by attorneys for the chief on possible motives back of what Webber's friends allege is the "harassing" of the chief.

Just how far the investigation will go this phase of the subject will go is not known.

The complaint of Mayor Sorenson was officially served on Police Chief Webber this morning by members of the Fire and Police commission.

PLAN $30,000,000 PLANT AT SUPERIOR

U. S. Steel Corporation to Install Huge Works at the Head of Lakes to Em-

SUPERIOR, Wis., Sept. 11.—The United States Steel corporation is going to spend in the neighborhood of $30,000,000 on a new steel plant at the head of the great lakes, according to an announcement here today. The erection of the new plant will begin in the spring. It is planned to employ about 12,000 men in the new mills.

Power, to be obtained from the St. Louis river, will be second only in voltage to that obtained at Niagara and Keokuk and by a new electric process officials say the steel corporation can manufacture its product at 20 per cent less than at any other point in the country.

COUPON BALLOT ADOPTED HERE

Modern Voting Device Is Chosen by Supervisors for Use in La Crosse County at Next Election

REFER DRAINAGE PROPOSITION

Special Committee to Investigate Proposition of Town of Onalaska Farmers by November

By a vote of twenty-one to fourteen the La Crosse county board yesterday afternoon adopted the Dunn coupon ballot as the official voting device for this county.

The final vote did not come until after much debate on the floor in which Supervisor Valentine Keppel spoke many times and led the opposition to the new ballot.

Friends of the ballot were numerous, as the vote indicates, and Supervisors W. E. Barber and Walter Winter spoke in favor of the measure.

"This is a plain, sensible, business proposition," declared Mr. Barber in apparent irritation over the continued attack on the proposition by Keppel.
"All this talk about confusion and the stating of hypothetical cases wherein the ballot could be misused are but means to delay the vote and work up a false case against the innovation. I believe in it as the best possible means for every man to record his vote just as he intends."

The roll call was asked for and it showed the following result:

For the ballot—Supervisors Geo.
E. Ash, Barber, Cox, Elbertson, Engass, Gale, Guenther, Hanson, Hodge, Holm, Kerrigan, Kleeber, Kindley, Moore, Pammel, Paulson, Pein, Ver-chota, Whelpley, Winter and Chairman Davis.

Against—John L. Ash, Baum, Clements, Hatz, Kaylor, Keppel, Lunde, Moran, Nettleman, Richmond, Sandman, Shane, Stratman and Timp.

The board has the authority, under a new Wisconsin statute, to discontinue its use at any time it sees fit.

The proposition of town of Onalaska farmers to construct a $10,000 drainage dyke in the town of Onalaska, thereby preventing the covering of hundreds of acres of fertile land near Midway with sand, was referred to a special committee of the board to report at the November meeting.

The expense of the drainage undertaking is to be apportioned between interested farmers, the towns of Onalaska and Campbell and the railroad company. The proposed dyke changes the course of Halfway creek.

KANSAS DROUGHT BREAKS

KANSAS CITY, Kan., Sept. 11.— One of the worst droughts in the history of Kansas is really broken today. Heavy rains which started last night continue today and from one and one-half to four inches of rain has fallen generally over the state starting fall crops growing for winter forage and relieving the sick water conditions which sent half a million Kansas cattle to market because of lack of water.

RAIN DAMPS FAIR

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Sept. 11.— Rain that started shortly before noon today put a crimp in "Milwaukee day" at the State fair grounds here, but even with the reduced crowds, 15,000 people had entered the fair grounds up to noon.

STEAL $500 IN GINSENG

SPARTA, Wis., Sept. 11.—Thieves last night stole $500 worth of ginseng from the gardens of Charles Rey, near Summit, Wis. The ginseng thefts this year, it is estimated, cost the farmers about Portage $3,500.

AEROPLANE DIVES INTO BIG CROWD

Four are Killed by Whirling Propeller Which Cuts Victims to Pieces

COBLENZ, Sept. 11.—Four persons were killed, two fatally injured and 15 hurt this afternoon by a biplane which failed to rise but instead dived into a crowd of spectators near Buchenbeuren.

A woman and a boy were cut to pieces by the whirling propeller blades of the unmanageable machine, a man's head was cut off and a policeman's skull crushed so that he died.

The plane which wrought the havoc was in charge of Lieut. Teubner, who was participating in the maneuvers near here. Lieut. Schneider was in the air in a biplane and the people were watching him when Teubner attempted to go up. His motor failed to work properly and instead of ascending, his machine ran into the crowd watching Schneider.
Many persons were seriously trampled in the panic.

LOCAL LEADERS LAUD LA FOLLETTE

Democrats and Republicans Both Declare "Bob" Was Right in Voting for Tariff Bill

BEING ATTACKED BY STALWARTS

Standpat Press and Repuliated Lieutenant Governor "Read Him Out of Party"

While the stalwart Milwaukee
Free Press and the "late lamented"
W. D. Connor are reading Senator La Follette out of the republican party for his vote for the Underwood tariff bill, local democrats and republicans declare the senator has justified the confidence placed in him by the thousands who helped to send him to the senate.

"I am not surprised a bit by Senator La Follette's vote," said John F.
Doherty, prominent progressive democrat and recent candidate for attorney general of Wisconsin. "While the senator has generally been considered a protective tariff man I don't think he is as ardent as he used to be. I believe his vote has helped him in the nation and there is no doubt but that he has cemented thousands of voters in his own state."

Was Statesmanlike
Attorney Charles H. Schweizer, progressive republican, today said:
"I don't see how any man who has taken the position Senator La Follette has in the past could have done otherwise. It was a courageous, statesmanlike performance and meets with my hearty approval. No man who has supported Senator La Follette in the past has reason to deny him support in the future."

"I believe that La Follette's vote justifies the confidence the people placed in him," declared District Attorney D. S. Law, democrat, this morning. "He undoubtedly considers it a progressive measure. If he had voted against the bill he would have been voting with the old interests—something he has never done before on a single measure."

Former Republican County Chairman James Thompson today said:
"I have favored a reduction of the tariff and with an income tax a reduction of the tariff should be possible.
I presume 'Bob' felt that it was a choice between two evils—retaining the old on one hand and voting for the new on the other. He chose the lesser. I would have done exactly the same thing."

Lieutenant Governor Morris said today:
"I believe in reducing the tariff schedules to the lowest possible point that will afford protection to the American farmer, laborer and manufacturer—the schedules to be measured by the differences in the cost of production at home and abroad. The country demanded revision downward. The schedules of the Payne-Aldrich bill were manifestly too high and ought to have been reduced long ago. The Wilson-Underwood bill, of course, could have been improved, and it is to be regretted that the amendments offered by Senator La Follette were not incorporated in the bill. Senator La Follette found himself in a position when the final vote came where he had to choose one or the other of the horns of the dilemma.
He did what any honest man maintaining his views on the subject would have to do, and again demonstrated his patriotism."

WILSON TO CORNISH

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—President Wilson planned late this afternoon to leave for Cornish, N. H., for possibly a week's vacation. The president hopes to have a real rest and will try to avoid handling any public business in order to get back to Washington refreshed and fit for the currency fight.

TWO ROB SALOON

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Sept. 11.—
Two masked men entered the saloon of Charles Dekarske early today and ordering the proprietor and his wife to throw up their hands took sixty dollars from the cash register and escaped before Dekarske could call the police.

SMUGGLERS HOLD TEXAS DEPUTIES

Mexican Is Killed but Two of Posse Are Captured in Fight with Ammunition Smugglers

AUSTIN, Texas, Sept. 11.—One Mexican was killed and two deputy sheriffs named Bucking and Ortiz, were captured by smugglers in a fight between a sheriff's posse and fifteen Mexican ammunition smugglers this morning near Carrizosa Springs, Dimi-tito county, not far from the border.

Another posse has left Carrizosa Springs determined to rescue the deputies and Governor Colquhoun has ordered rangers to the scene. In the event the smugglers are overtaken, a bloody fight is sure to follow.

MAKE GET-WAY IN AUTOMOBILE

Four Knock Down Man as He Leaves Bank, Seize
His Bag and Speed
Away

CHICAGO, Sept. 11.—Four men attacked Warrington McAvoy, messenger for the Garfield Park State Savings bank in full view of hundreds of spectators on West Madison street today, knocked him down, seized a valise containing $4,600 in cash and $10,000 worth of checks and escaped in an automobile. They speeded West on Madison street to Forty-second and disappeared.

At Doors of Bank
The robbery occurred at the door of the bank and shortly after the opening hour, while West Madison street, one of the city's busiest thoroughfares, was crowded with pedestrians.

McAvoy, as was his daily custom, left the bank to make the rounds of other institutions with whom the Garfield Park bank carries on an exchange. As he left the door, four men leaped out of a Ford automobile standing at the curb and stepped toward him.

One struck the bank messenger in the face, knocking him down. A second seized the valise and tossed it into the tonneau of the car. The quartet then jumped into the auto, put on full speed and were out of sight almost before McAvoy struggled to his feet.

None Got Number
A dozen pedestrians were within ten yards of the bank messenger when he was attacked. Not one of them secured the number of the auto, but a corner cigar man said that it carried an Illinois license and that "540" was part of the number.

A general police alarm was sent out all over the city and detectives in autos set out to intercept the car.
The valise stolen from the bank messenger and the $10,000 worth of checks were found this afternoon in a new building at 1243 Independence boulevard by two steam fitters. Realizing that they would have difficulty in negotiating the paper, the robbers evidently transferred the cash to their pockets and threw away the valise.

ARKANSAS HANGS YOUTH

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., Sept. 11.— Arkansas today hanged an 18 year old boy, Omer Davis, who was hanged for the murder of his school mistress, Miss Nellie Moneyhun. He protested his innocence to the last. His mother, who had tramped over northern Arkansas with a petition asking commutation of the sentence, was near the inclosure and collapsed when she heard the trap sprung.

APPROVE CONVICT LABOR

DIXON, Ill., Sept. 11.—After paying a visit to Camp Hope, where 45 honor convicts from the Joliet state penitentiary are at work on the roads, the Lee county board of supervisors today adopted a resolution commending the administration for establishing the convict labor system on the roads and urging that the system be broadened to include all able bodied prisoners in city, county and state institutions.

EXPLAINS RESIGNATION

dent of the Pontiac reformatory and mismanagement were pending against the institution, declared today that he quit to save the reformatory from objectionable notoriety based on "trumped up" charges. Russell denied that inmates had been mistreated.

MYSTERY SURROUNDS THE CASE

Domestic Affairs Most Happy Says Brother to Tribune and Continued Absence Unexplained

The police of Chicago and the entire northwest were today asked to assist in locating Mrs. George Palmer, Northeast Minneapolis, formerly Miss Lillian Robinson, Bangor, Wis., who on July 8 disappeared from her home in the Twin Cities, and up to date has not been located.
Her mother, Mrs. George Robinson, of Bangor, is half crazed over the failure of the young woman to make known her whereabouts, while George Palmer, of Minneapolis, is covering the country with telegrams in search of the young woman.

Mrs. Palmer, who is but twenty-five years of age, was married six years ago and has resided continuously at Minneapolis since her wedding. She has frequently, however, visited at the home of her mother in Bangor, and is well known here and in La Crosse.

Disappears July 8

On July 8, without saying a word to her husband, friends or relatives in Bangor, she disappeared from Minneapolis and all trace of her was lost. A clue to her whereabouts was recently received by the mother in Bangor when she received a letter from her daughter. The letter was postmarked Chicago, and stated that the young woman was in good health but contained no address. Neither did the missive bear anything in the way of an explanation of the mysterious disappearance of the girl or any intimation as to whether or not she was staying away voluntarily or was being detained against her will.

According to her brother, Charles Robinson, of Bangor, the disappearance is one of the most mysterious he has conceived. His sister, he says, has never had the slightest family trouble since her marriage to Palmer six years ago.

Husband Frantic

Her husband, in Minneapolis, said the brother to The Tribune today, is nearly frantic over the continued unexplained absence of his wife and is using every possible means to locate his missing wife.

The missing woman is young and uncommonly beautiful.

"My sister has no relatives in Chicago, and as far as I know had never been to the city before in her life."

This statement adds to the mystery surrounding the case and makes explanation of the affair difficult.

Mrs. Robinson at Bangor is almost crazed over the affair and her relatives fear that serious results may follow if her daughter continues to surround her whereabouts with mystery.

Sends Out Telegrams

In an effort to prevent further suffering on the part of the mother and if possible to reach his wife, Mr.
Palmer, has sent the following telegram to the Chicago police and to places elsewhere in the vicinity:

"On July 8 Mrs. George Palmer of Minneapolis left and we don't know where she is. She sends mail out of Chicago but does not give any address. Ask her to go home to her mother in Bangor, Wis."

Mrs. Palmer was nineteen years of age when married and has no children.

YACHT FIRE FATAL

CHICAGO, Sept. 11.—An unidentified man was fatally burned today in an explosion and fire that totally destroyed the $15,000 yacht of Mr.
James D. Lacey real estate broker, 332 South Michigan avenue. Lacey had the yacht docked in the north branch of the Chicago river to repair the boat and fit her for a month's cruise. Shortly before noon, dock workers heard a terrific explosion and the man ran to the deck and leaped into the river, his clothing aflame. He was dragged from the water and hurried to a hospital.

FAREWELL SUPPER GIVEN BY AD CLUB

Reuben N. Trane Guest of Honor at Supper Given by the Advertising Men of City

Reuben N. Trane, former Wisconsin crew star, and prominent young business man of this city, was the guest of honor at an Ad club supper given last night in the offices of C. A. Krebaum, president of the club. The supper was a farewell affair for Mr. Trane, who will leave La Crosse in a few days for Chicago, where he is going into business.

Every member of the club was asked to speak, and all delivered themselves of more or less good advice to the departing member, and wished him success in his new venture.

Mr. Trane, after thanking the club for its good wishes, expressed his regret at leaving La Crosse, and declared his confidence in the future of the Ad club.

A short discussion was held after the supper on the merits of a local advertising agency scheme for La Crosse, the object of which would be to handle advertising for merchants too busy to prepare "copy" for themselves, and to show small merchants the value of advertising.

CAN'T LOSE HIS POSTMASTERSHIP

STANTON, Wis., Sept. 11.—William McNamara of this place is embarrassed in a somewhat unusual manner. He has a postmastership on his hands which he does not appear to be able to get rid of. His resignation was forwarded to the postmaster general in Washington some months ago, but no one can be found who will accept the office. The patronage of the office has dwindled down to almost nothing. Most of the patrons who formerly got their mail here are now supplied by rural letter carriers from New Richmond and Deer Park. There is a talk of discontinuing the Stanton office altogether and substituting therefor rural delivery service from New Richmond.

"POT GANG" FIGHT VICTIM IDENTIFIED

LAKOTA, N. D., Sept. 11.—Frank Fisher of St. Joseph, Mo., is the man who was killed in a "pot gang" fight here Monday night. Identification was established today. He was shot, it is alleged, by Fred Mitchell, now in a Devils Lake hospital, and probably fatally wounded.

Was it a Hint? They had been talking as they walked. She had remarked pathetically: "Oh, it must be terrible to a man to be rejected by a woman!" "Indeed it must," was his response. Then, after a while, with sympathetic ingenueness, she exclaimed: "It doesn't seem that I could ever have the heart to do it." And there came a silence between them as he thought it over.

Arnold a Lenient Examiner. When Matthew Arnold was a school examiner a fellow inspector of a class of girl pupil-teachers asked Arnold to examine for him. Arnold gave each of the young women the "excellent" mark. "But," said the other inspector, "surely they are not all as good as they can be; some must be better than others." "Perhaps that is so," replied Arnold; "but then, you see, they are all such very nice girls."

To make tablecloths wear well buy one-eighth of a yard more of the goods than is needed. When the tablecloth begins to show wear cut off the eighth yard at one end and hem the end, says the Los Angeles Express. Also cut the same amount from one side of the cloth and hem the edge. This brings the folds in new places, and the cloth will last much longer.

BLAMES ROBBERY TO HER "HOODOO"

Negress Who Stole $13,500 of Laces and Gems from Employer Says She Can't Help Theft

CHICAGO, Sept. 11.—Julia Gates, a southern negro woman who confessed to the theft of $13,500 worth of jewels and laces, from her employer, Joseph Spiegel, president of a house furnishing company, told the police today that she was bewitched.

"Some one put the hoodoo on me and made me do this and I can't shake it off," declared the colored maid. "I have two veils on my left eye and one on my right eye. If you could get some one to take off these three veils I would be all right."

REASONS FOR ATTENDING THE "W.B.U."

A NEW ONE EVERY DAY

Dear Mr. Toland: Your letter of May 19th received. In reply will say that I am glad to have an opportunity to commend the Toland school. I meet W. B. U. graduates everywhere I go and all of them are successful. I personally know of hundreds who are holding responsible positions and all are considered first class. I think I have sent you the names of those whom I have met here, unless it is Sallie Deary, who is employed by Conklin & Sons.

I can heartily recommend the Toland School to anyone desiring a business education, for I know that my success is due to a thorough business training. I am still holding the same position and my salary has been increased. The success of some of your graduates who entered with only a common school education is simply wonderful.

Wishing you success and with kind regards to any of the teachers who may be there whom I know, I am,

Yours sincerely,

DASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—Further details of his charges against Attorney General McReynolds concerning the Union Pacific-Southern Pacific dissolution agreement, were laid before President Wilson today by Representative Kindel of Colorado. Kindel charges that in agreeing to the dissolution plan McReynolds was neglectful of the interests of the people of the west and that he did not scrutinize carefully enough "the extortion" practiced by the railroad on shippers.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

Where the First Boat Came From.

He Learned to Paddle About.

DADDY was putting the finishing touches to a little boat he had been whittling for Jack.

"Who made the first boat?" Evelyn wondered, and daddy, who was doing his best to think up a story, replied:

"We don't exactly know that, but I'll tell you a story about it. 'Long ago, when the world was young and people began to live on it, they didn't know so much about things as they do now.

"Their homes were caves which they found in the rocks or which they dug out for themselves. Once in those faroff times there was a lively small boy whose name I don't just know. I'm afraid he was not a very good boy, for instead of staying at home and scraping the skin of the deer which his father had killed so that they should have warm winter clothes he one day slipped off to the river in which he liked to go swimming.

"Now it happened there had been a big storm the night before and a tree had been rooted up by the wind and fallen into the stream. It came floating down the river, and the boy saw it. At first he amused himself by throwing stones at the log. Then he ran a race with it in the water. After awhile he swam up to it and climbed up and sat astride of the floating log.

"He had such fun with the tree that day that the next day he hunted up a hollow log in the woods and rolled it down to the river. In doing so he broke out a piece from the side of the log.

"When he shoved the log into the water the broken place was just big enough for him to sit in.

"One day his mother caught him paddling about in his hollow log. She ran and brought his father to see. They understood now why their son liked to spend so much time at the river instead of at work.

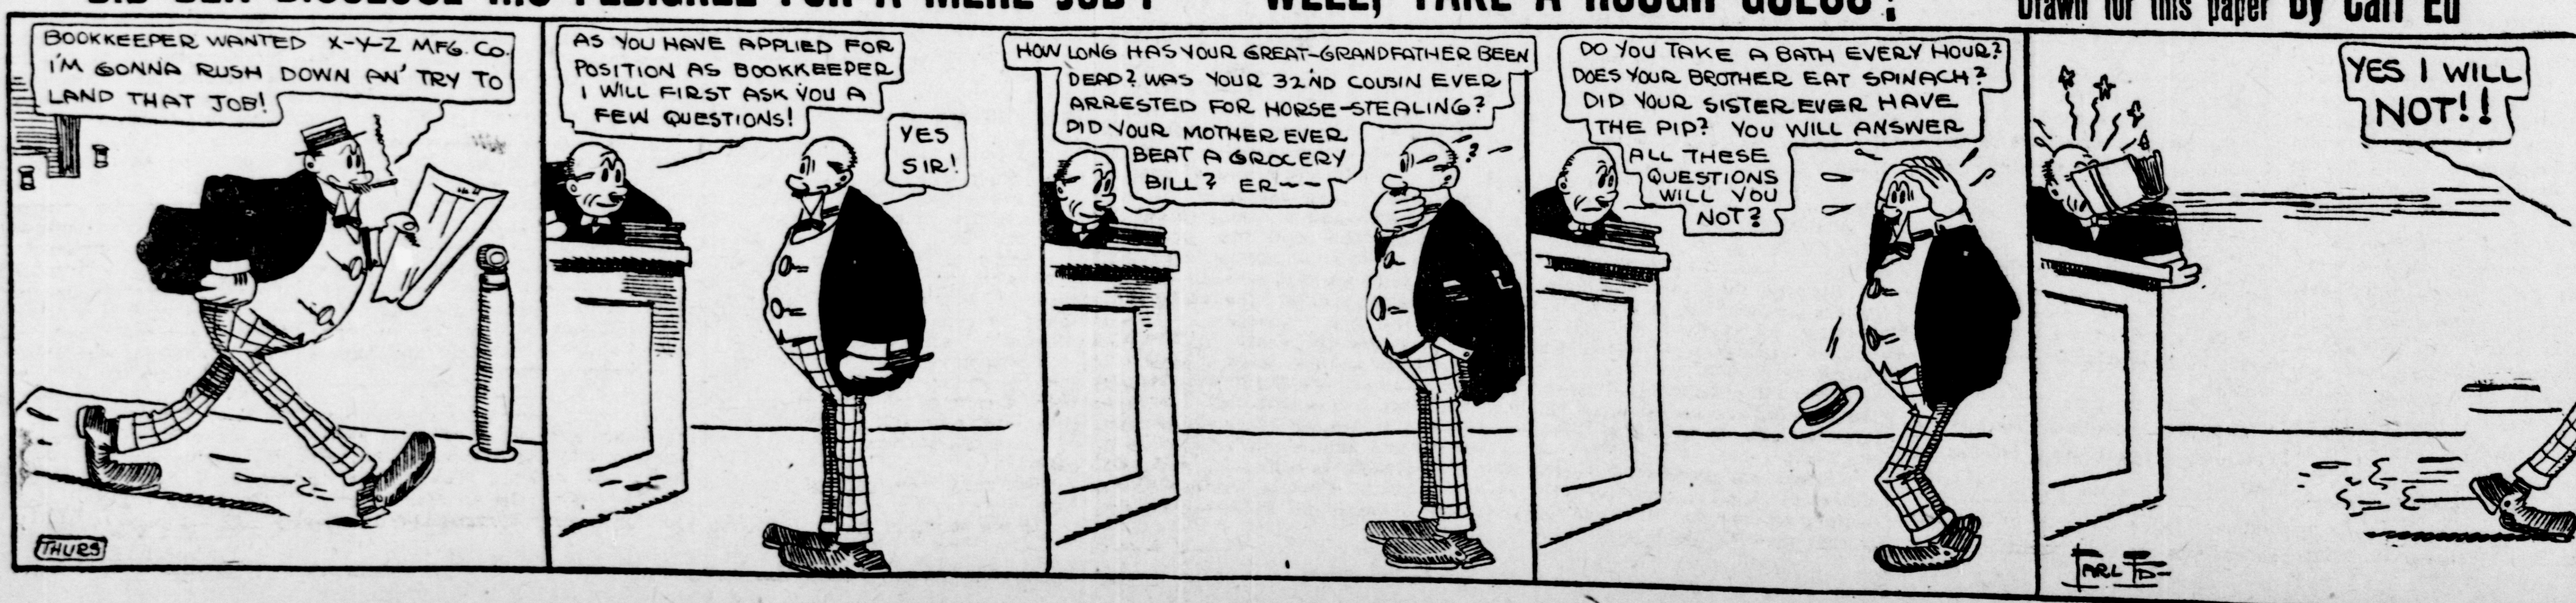

"The father called the boy to come to shore, but instead of doing so the lad hurriedly paddled to the other side of the river. He was afraid he would be punished. But his father wanted to try riding along in the hollow log, too, and he at last coaxed the boy to come back. The boy taught his father to paddle, and the other people of their tribe soon hunted up hollow logs, too, for they found that they would be useful in traveling about on the river.

"By and by, instead of hunting hollow logs, people burned out the inside of good ones, which they found was a much better way, as the hollow logs were apt to be rotten and go to pieces in the river just when they should not.

"And from these they went on improving until the boats in thousands of years have become the handsome painted launches and gayly painted craft that we now see on rivers and lakes and at the seashore."

THE TRIUMPH OF
"BOB" LA FOLLETTE

At bitter variance with the trust policy of the progressive party, opposed to free trade as strongly as to excessive protection, it must indeed have been a crisis in the life of Robert M. La Follette when he was called upon to vote upon the Wilson tariff yesterday.

All the old-time political dopesters, certain that La Follette would see his chance for the presidency in making excuses to vote against the new tariff thus smoothing his way with the republican machine, were cock-sure the senator would vote against the bill.

Nowhere in his political career has La Follette appeared stronger than in the incident of yesterday. He knew the cost of his act—it meant that the thimble-rigged organization of his party would regard him with inverted thumbs. But that did not influence him, no matter how it grieved him. He simply compared the Wilson bill with the Aldrich law, and voted his conviction. To his friends he said:

"I realize what I did was a political sacrifice, but that within me compelled me to vote for the bill.
The tariff act of 1909 was but little short of a crime; the bill passed today is not a democratic measure but is a protective measure. Every change made by the finance committee was made by way of adjustment to a protective basis, except such as free wool and free sugar, which were determined upon outside. They treated the agricultural schedule, I regret to say, on a free trade basis and I would have retained more duty on cutlery and some other articles on which there is no data in order to be sure not to ruin American production.
Give the democrats time and they will put everything on a free trade basis, but they have not done it in this bill."

The people have been waiting for this. They knew it was coming.
They might spend hours in figuring out how his political plans would lead him the other way, but to all such conclusions his record made an answer. Never in all his life had he sacrificed a principle for an advantage, how presume he would do so now?

But was it a sacrifice? The people today are depending less on parties and more on men. Witness the Maine congressional election where a progressive congressional candidate Tuesday polled about ten per cent of the vote polled by Roosevelt in the district less than a year ago. Penrose and Smoot object, but what of the people? When we read certain paragraphs from a dispassionate press dispatch describing the voting we were first most impressed by the picture of La Follette's mastery of himself as he put his party behind him and voted for principle. But, upon second reading, something bigger than even this appeared. It was the answer to Senator La Fol-lette's problem, and it came from the galleries. No doubt the reader saw it, but it is worth reading again. We quote:

"Senator Ashurst, first on the roll, shouted: 'No,' and the roll call proceeded deliberately until the clerk called 'La Follette.'

"The Wisconsin senator, seated in the first row, hesitated a moment.
His head was bowed and resting on his hand. He leaned forward a trifle and vigorously answered 'yea,'

"Instantly the applause broke from the galleries and senators on the democratic side joined in enthusiastic handclapping."

What boots it what Penrose and Smoot think about La Follette?—the great rank and file of America have again said, "Well done, good and faithful servant."

IS NOT THIS A GOOD INVESTMENT

Candor compels the admission that it was not an enthusiastic or purposeful audience that greeted Dr.
Darns' argument for the Reformed church college at the board of trade dinner Tuesday night. Not that the gentlemen present were not impressed, but rather that they had adversely prejudged the possibility of creating the necessary fund.

At the risk of convincing business men that a newspaper is an institution of which the important function is to advise men to loosen up on their cash, The Tribune advocates a serious effort to secure this institution for the La Crosse.

From a commercial aspect the college promises as much as a really big and first class industry. To assume that during its first ten years it will have an average attendance of 200 is conservative, nor would an estimate of 300 to 350 be excessive. It is equally conservative to calculate that the students and faculty will spend an average of $400 a year.

Some will live for $250 to $300, but many will spend $1,000. At $400 each the 200 students will disburse $80,000 a year in La Crosse. The faculty, synod and directors will easily make it $20,000 more, or a total of $100,000 a year. That means $1,- 000,000 in ten years.

This $1,000,000, please note, is not money earned here and spent here, merely circulating about in the community; it is money earned in other states and other cities and brought to La Crosse and left here to enrich our citizens.

In other words, for every dollar this school will bring to La Crosse in ten years we pay three cents. Even if we figure five per cent interest on our investment, we would be paying only four and one-half cents for every dollar of the million.

There are other strong advantages offered by the college, and we shall take them up later. For the present let us study the financial phase of the problem.

Understood the Nature of an Oath In the early days of Arizona, an elderly and pompous chief justice was presiding at the trial of a celebrated murder case. An aged negro had been ruthlessly killed, and the only eyewitness to the murder was a very small negro boy. When he was called to give his testimony, the lawyer for the defense objected on the ground that he was too young to know the nature of an oath, and in examining him asked:

"What would happen to you, if you told a lie?"

"De debbil 'ud git me!" the boy replied.

"Yes, and I'd get you," sternly said the chief justice.

"Dat's jus' what I said," answered the boy.—National Monthly.

A Frail Body
A lady with a wasplike waist fainted in a city street the other day and was carried into the nearest shop.
An Irishman, who had observed the occurrence, looked into the shop after a few minutes and inquired:

"How is she now?"

"Oh," said the shopman, "she's coming to."

"Ah," replied Pat, "come in two, has she? Poor thing! Bedad, it's just what I was afraid of."

A Fitting Wedding Cake
A man went to order a wedding cake the other day.

"I'm getting married," he said,
"and I want a cake."

"Well, it's the latest thing," said the shopgirl, "to have wedding cakes in harmony with the bridegroom's calling or profession. Thus, a journalist has a spice cake, a musician an oat cake, an athlete a cup cake, a man who loafs on his friends a sponge cake and so forth and so on. What is your calling, please?"

"I am a pianist."

"Then, of course," said the girl,
"you'll want a pound cake."

Only a Dream
Billy—Do you believe in signs?
Milly—Yes, indeed.

Billy—Well, last night I dreamed you were madly in love with me.
What is that a sign of?

Milly—That's a sign you were dreaming.

Sleeps With Her Eyes
A good planter's wife, "befo' de wah," was teaching a jet black house girl, just 14, and fresh from the plantation, the alphabet. Betsy had learned the first two letters, but always forgot the useless letter "C."

"Don't you see with your eyes, Betsy? Can't you remember the word see?" said the mistress.

"Yassum," answered Betsy, but she couldn't. Five minutes after Betsy began again bravely, "A—B—" and there she stopped.

"What do you do with your eyes, Betsy?"

"I sleeps wid 'em, mistiss." And this ended for that day the effort to "educate" Betsy.

He Was Willing Richard Mansfield, the actor, had not much hair, and this fact was commented on to the actor by a lady whose friendship permitted personal allusions.

"Why, Mr. Mansfield," said the lady, "you are losing your hair all the time. You'll be bald if this keeps on."

"Keeps on, madam?" queried the actor, putting his hand on what remained of his hair. "My daily prayer is that this will keep on."

circulars is "old fashioned" is because it is inefficient.

Advertising is judged by the company it keeps, that is one of the reasons why newspaper advertising is so effective.

Aside from the business considerations it is hardly just to the citizens who are trying to make and keep La Crosse a clean and beautiful city, to have some among their number distribute circulars a large percentage of which find their way to the sidewalks and streets.

There is no doubt that some kinds of circular advertising are interesting and effective but these should be sent through the mails in order that they will be delivered to the person to whom they are addressed.

Very sincerely yours,
THURSTON OWENS.

NOTE:—The inflation of the chest of which the editor was conscious as he read the above collapsed with the explosive exhalation of an open exhaust upon the realization that our good friend was uttering his peans of praise over an editorial which we copied, duly credited, from the Madison State Journal. We are more than a little piqued that although he has been reading Tribune editorials daily during the many months of his welcome residence in La Crosse, it required that rare occasion when we "take our scissors in hand" to inspire Mr. Owens to public commendation of our modest efforts. Perhaps, however, we should not be disappointed for with keen discernment he has recognized a real talent. We do clip well—almost as well as the editor of the State Journal writes, and herein we find consolation. We shall not lose Mr. Owens' subscription account as long as our Madison contemporary keeps on writing and we keep on clipping.

principle as the big outfits used to clean the stone fronts of begrimed city buildings, is now being applied to jewelry. By means of it delicate frostpumice is used in place of sand, and the blast pressure is very small.

Makes any Corn Shrive, Vanish

You'll say, "It does beat all how quick 'GETS-IT' got rid of that corn. It's almost magic!" "GETS-IT" gets every corn, every time, as sure as the sun rise. It takes about two seconds to apply it. Corn pains stop, you forget the corn, the corn shrivels up, and it's gone! Every try anything like that? You never did.

There's no more fussing with plasters that press on the corn, no more salves that take off the surrounding flesh, no more bandages. No more knives, files or razors that make corns grow, and cause danger of harmless. It "gets" every corn, wart,

"Indeed!" General Gourmand received the statement with his heavy brows in a tremendous frown, and eyes gleaming with pride in the defiance. "Is it so, my daughter? I am lucky to have some one who is really a person to save me from being a brute altogether. But all the same, you grand lady and person, you can't hand down the name of Gourmand. You will fly off some day to a brute with a mustache, and leave your father alone in this big chateau, is it not?" He knew her answer, but he liked to hear it.

"I shall never marry anybody," Alix announced. "I can not ever love any one like my father."

In spite of the satisfaction which this speech gave him, it was a sadness to the baron that no grandchild of his name would live in this chateau which he had so soon loved so much. He thought of it many times, and the more keenly he felt the joy of his life the more keenly he felt this missing thread in its pattern. Yet it seemed a disloyalty to Alix when the memory of the little peasant boy with the large dark eyes came to him as he told stories to his daughter in the twilight. The story of the battle of Ratibon it was tonight, and how he had gone down into that "glorious ditch" and swarmed up the ladder with the French troops under fire.

Alix's blue eyes flashed and her hands clutched his coat lapels—she loved the tale. Yet into the mind of Gaspard Gourmand shot the idea that if he were telling it to a boy of his, he might dream how that boy would march away some day and do such a deed with a memory of his father in his soul. Yet no boy could ever have been as dear to him as this girl, gentle and spirited, elusive, caressing, sweetest always in the world.

CHAPTER V.
His Star.

"Father, father!" Alix dashed into the library the morning after the tale of Ratibon.

"I told you, Mademoiselle, that I was not to be troubled. I am writing my book," the general thundered at the little figure.

Alix was not impressed. "Do not drop your eyebrows in that way," she put a forefinger on each bushy line. "It makes you so ugly, father."

He put his arm around her.
"What is it you wish? Be quick."

"Oh!" Alix danced in excitement again. "There is a queer, little village boy—there is a good boy, father. He has brought you a bunch of lettuce—such white, fat lettuce!
Will you see him? May I bring him here? He is a very good boy."

"Alix, you are impayable," the general groaned. "I am your plaything! Yes, bring the good little boy—send for all the village—have in the servants—that will help me with my writing."

Alix, ignoring sarcasm, had flown. In a minute she was back and led by the hand Francois.

"Ah!" the general greeted him sternly. "My friend, the Marshal!
You have already begun the attack on my chateau, it seems?"

"No, my Seigneur," the boy answered gravely. "Not yet. I bring you some salad as a present. It is from my mother's garden. I chose the best."

"I thank you," said the general with seriousness. "I am not sure if your mother will thank you equally.
It is a good present."

Francois was gratified. La Claire had this morning sent him to the gardens with a wide margin of time, and the inspiration had come as he looked down the gleaming row of white lettuce that he would take a tribute and make the visit which the seigneur had asked him to make. The seigneur would be glad of the lettuce, for had not his father said yesterday that it was the best ever grown, that he would wager there was none such in the village, nor, not even in the garden of the chateau. He filled his mother's basket so full that he staggered and climbed the slope and made his way past the ruins to the left around the lift of Le Rose, across the Pre du Sac, on to the new chateau to the great paved courtyard one hundred feet square, past the stables at the left and on to the door. There a big man, dressed beautifully in violet, had refused to let him in, had even refused to take his lettuce to the seigneur, and the boy was about to go off grieved when a wonderful little girl, also in beautiful clothes, but less lovely than the violet ones, had appeared. Like a fairy she looked, he thought, and like a fairy she had changed everything, and now here he was in the presence of the seigneur, accepting thanks, looking about as much as he might and yet be polite, at the unknown splendors of a room in the chateau itself.

General Gourmand brought down his fist on a table so that it rattled and Francois started—but not Alix.

"Sabre de bois!" he threw at the two children. "You have ruined my morning between you. I meant to finish those cursed chapters this morning. But let them wait. Having the honor to receive a visit from an officer of high rank, the least I can do is to entertain him. What amusement do you prefer, M'sieur the Marshal? I am at your service."

It was natural to Francois to believe every one kindly; he accepted with simplicity, if with slight surprise, the general's speech.

"Does the seigneur mean it?" he asked.

"But yes," the general shot at him.

"If the seigneur means it," Francis went on promptly. "I know what I wish."

"Parbleu!" you do?" General Gourmand was surprised in turn at this readiness. "What then?"

"The seigneur has fought battles under the great Emperor himself?" the boy asked in an awed tone.

"Yes," came the abrupt answer again.

"Think!" whispered the French boy. "To have fought under the Emperor!" And the old soldier's heart thrilled suddenly. The child went on. "If the seigneur would tell me a story of one fight—of just one!"

EVA TANGUAY

Perhaps the biggest feature in connection with the appearance at the La Crosse theater tomorrow, matinee and night, Eva Tanguay and her company of volcanic vaudeville, will be Miss Tanguay's original version of "Salome," a most pretentious act, in which the cyclonic comedienne enacts the scene where Salome returns from the Temple following the gratification of her whim that she be given the head of John the Baptist. For this number Miss Tanguay has an elaborate setting with electrical effects, and a human head to represent that of the victim of her madness, and so vivid and realistic has been her interpretation of the scene, that it has been given the highest praise and endorsement wherever she has appeared.

CHAUNCEY OLCOTT

Chauncey Olcott is one of the actors of whom it can be said that "age cannot wither or custom stale his infinite variety." The years go on rolling over his head, but the silvery tones of his tenor voice, the blitheness of his action and the charm of his personality show no signs of diminution. He will make his annual appearance here at the La Crosse theater Tuesday evening, September 16, and will be greeted by the usual big and enthusiastic audiences, audiences which always greet the romantic situations with applause, that gently sway in time to the rhythm of Mr. Olcott's melodies and that feel no hesitancy about shouting their preference for the encore songs. His new play, "Shameen Dhu," by Rida John-

TO HUNT CONCERN FOR SUMMIT PLANT

DISCUSS THE VIADUCT MATTER

Members of League Anxious to Have Work Completed This Year

A committee was appointed last night at the meeting of the North Side Progressive league to try to locate a new concern in the building occupied at present by the Summit Stove company which is planning to move.

A half hour discussion was held on the much talked of Rose street viaduct and the building of the proposed new crossing, plans for which are now in the hands of the Wisconsin railroad commission. A committee was appointed to discover from the commission whether a viaduct or whatever plan the commission consented to, could be carried out this season. The majority of the members hold that the crossing of the Milwaukee tracks should be attended to at once. They say that steel bridges are built during the winter months.

No Water Pressure

Alderman Robert Schultz was appointed a committee of one to petition the council to improve the public drinking fountains on the north side. According to members of the league the fountains have not been running since early spring, except at intervals. They say the water pressure is not great enough to carry the water to them.

The matter of building a bridge on the Rubber Mills road was settled at the meeting last night. Plans of the bridge, prepared by City Engineer George Bradish, were shown to the league by Alderman Schultz. Alderman Schultz will present the matter to the council at its next meeting, and the contract for building the bridge will probably be let within the next few days. The building of the bridge was pushed last spring when the early floods filled Goose Creek, marooning employees of the Rubber Mills and keeping them from the factory.

Would Grade St. Andrew

It was suggested at the meeting of the league that north side aldermen be asked to petition the council at the next meeting to grade St. Andrew street for the one block between Mill and Sumner streets, near the grounds of the Interstate Oil company promised the members of the league last night that the company would furnish cinders for a sidewalk on both sides of the street. The company will build a fence around their property, as they say that trouble has been encountered in keeping small boys off the premises. They fear a small boy with a match might ignite the oil and cause an explosion.

The Claw of the Devil

In the middle ages people recognized witches and possessed persons by seeking on their bodies for what was called the claw of the devil. It was a more or less extensive part of the skin in which the subject was insensible to any touch or prick. The expert intrusted with this work would close the eyes of the subject and, armed with a sharp needle, prick here and there the different parts of the body. The sufferer was to answer with a cry to each prick, and the claw of the devil on a certain spot was recognized from the fact that he did not cry when this spot was examined. — From "The Major Symptoms of Hysteria," by Pierre Janet.

Know Where the Temple Was. Little Jim, though he attended Sunday school every week, did not know quite so much about Scriptural history as he ought to have known, but when his sister asked him "Where was Solomon's temple?" he was rather angry that she should think him unable to answer a simple question like that.

"Don't you think I know anything?" he asked.

"Well, where was it then?" his sister repeated, and then he informed her:

"On the side of his forehead, of course—the same as other folks. Do you think I'm a dunce?"—London Tatler.

DECISION HITS NUDES

U. S. OFFICIALS SAY SANBORN'S RULING WILL BE USED TO DRIVE PUBLISHERS OUT OF BUSINESS

CHICAGO, Sept. 11.—Federal officials declared today that the decision of Judge Sanborn, barring from the mails pictures of women, garbed only in smiles, will be used as a weapon to drive nude picture publishers practically out of business.

In upholding the ruling of Postmaster Campbell, Judge Sanborn found that 350 separate pictures, all copies of famous paintings, could not be sent through the mails by Mrs. Ivy Sturdivant, who made a business of selling copies of "Nature Poses." Among the better known paintings, copies of which were barred by the postmaster, are: "In the Harem," "After the Bath," "Bacchante in Repose," "Sirens," "The Model," "Temptation," and "Innocence."

The court ruled that the postmaster is "supreme as an art censor."

Ceylon Bullock Carts Passing.

Owing to heavy mortality among the bullocks used for transporting plantation products in Ceylon, due to rinderpest and foot-and-mouth disease, a revolution seems to be impending in this island, in the substitution of motor lorries for the picturesque but slow and cumbersome bullock carts which for centuries have been the chief means of conveying goods in Ceylon.

The Kind You Have Always Bought.

THIS is the caution applied to the public announcement of Castoria that has been manufactured under the supervision of Chas. H. Fletcher for over 30 years—the genuine Castoria. We respectfully call the attention of fathers and mothers when purchasing Castoria to see that the wrapper bears his signature in black. When the wrapper is removed the same signature appears on both sides of the bottle in red. Parents who have used Castoria for their little ones in the past years need no warning against counterfeits and imitations, but our present duty is to call the attention of the younger generation to the great danger of introducing into their families spurious medicines. It is to be regretted that there are people who are now engaged in the nefarious business of putting up and selling all sorts of substitutes, or what should more properly be termed counterfeits, for medicinal preparations not only for adults, but worse yet, for children's medicines. It therefore devolves on the mother to scrutinize closely what she gives her child. Adults can do that for themselves, but the child has to rely on the mother's watchfulness. Genuine Castoria always bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

Recovered From

Severe Lung Trouble

Plenty of fresh air and good food are necessary to persons suffering from lung trouble, but something more is needed to bring about full health. Eckman's Alternative is a medicine for throat and lung troubles, and so many reports have been received showing that it brought about good results in a number of cases which were declared hopeless, that all sufferers who are not benefiting otherwise should at least investigate what it has done for others. Investigate this case:

Madison Lake, Minn.
"Gentlemen: In December, 1908, March, 1909, and September, 1909, I was taken with hemorrhages of the lungs which confined me several weeks, each time to my bed. My doctor advised me to go west."

"In November I started for Denver, Colo. After my arrival I met Michael Brody, who, upon learning of my condition, urged me to take Eckman's Alternative. In about two months I began to feel better. I kept on taking the medicine and improved fast. In March, 1910, I returned home. I think I am entirely well, have a good appetite and sleep well. When I left Denver my weight was 130 pounds. I now weigh 165, my normal weight. I thank God and your Alternative for my health."

Eckman's Alternative has been proven by many years' test to be most efficacious in cases of severe Throat and Lung Affections, Bronchitis, Bronchial Asthma, Stomach Colds and in upbuilding the system. Does not contain narcotics, poisons or habit forming drugs. For sale by Geo. Mariner, Chas. Beyerslag, and other leading druggists. Write the Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia, Pa., for booklet telling of recoveries and additional evidence.

Business is becoming more and more a specialty with certain Druggists, who pay particular attention to this branch of their profession. ER AFTER STALLING IN SKULL VALLEY

SALT LAKE, Utah, Sept. 11.—The automobile hearse containing the corpse of Michael Moran, of San Diego, which is being run overland from San Diego to Salt Lake is stalled in Skull Valley, ninety miles west of here. William A. Peck, of Los Angeles, who is driving the hearse, arrived today and said he was compelled to leave the machine where it stalled.

The rough roads broke the springs and tore the tires to ribbons. The body was left in the care of R. H. Hambley, of San Diego, who is accompanying it. Hambley pitched camp beside the hearse, and is keeping the desert animals away from the hearse at night with the aid of a huge camp fire. Peck left for Skull Valley today with supplies to complete the journey to Salt Lake.

CHICAGO, Sept. 11.—The Panama canal will be the "motif" of 1914 styles in women's clothes. President J. P. Howland of the National Cloak, Suit & Skirt association, volunteered the information today.

The most disgusting person on earth.

said the man on the car, "is in my opinion, the woman who is constantly nagging her husband. I mean the kind of a woman who never leaves a man alone, who gets in the habit of finding fault with everything he does, of dictating what he shall eat and wear, when he shall come home, whom he shall know. Such a person is the most horrible specimen of humanity."

"No, she isn't," denied the other man quietly.

"May the title be 'The Scarlet Yacht?'"

Again he looked, with the same result. Then with her pretty fingers she dived into her bag, consulted a slip of paper and said:

"Oh, I beg pardon. I mean the 'Rubaiyat.'"—Glasgow Herald.

Lesson in Scientific

Complexion Renewing

(From the Family Physician.)

Everyone has a beautiful skin underneath the one exposed to view. Bear that in mind and it will be easier to understand the correct principle in acquiring a lovely complexion. Nature is constantly shedding the top skin in flaky particles like dandruff, only much smaller in size. In abnormal conditions, or in advancing age, these particles are not shed as rapidly as in robust youth. The longer they remain the more soiled or faded they become—that's the immediate cause of a "bad complexion."

It has been discovered that ordinary mercialized wax, to be had at any drug store, will absorb these worn-out particles. The absorption, while hastening Nature's work, goes on gradually enough to cause no inconvenience. In a week or two the transformation is complete. The fresh, healthy-hued, youthful under-skin is then wholly in evidence. You who are not satisfied with your complexion should get an ounce of mercialized wax and try this treatment. Use the wax nightly, like cold cream, washing it off mornings.—Advertisement.

MAYOR GAYNOR OF NEW YORK DIES ON OCEAN LINER

neck where the bullet was lodged turned blue. After his speech of acceptance had been read for him, Gaynor went back to his office where he collapsed, dropping into a chair, murmuring:

"I'm tired—oh, so tired. I'm all tired out."

The next day he secretly went aboard the Baltic and sailed for Europe, expecting to stay only a few days on the other side and hoping that the rest and sea air would relieve his suffering.

The Baltic today at noon was 225 miles west of Queenstown. The body will be returned to New York as quickly as possible.

Adolph L. Kline, president of the board of aldermen, became acting mayor upon the death of Gaynor. He was serving temporarily during the mayor's absence and signaled his assumption of office last week by taking the lid off Coney Island.

Republican in Chair
Kline is a strict organization republican, so that the city government passes, nominally at least, out of the control of the democrats.

John Purroy Mitchell, who resigned as president of the board of aldermen, to become collector of the port, would have become acting mayor now if he had not answered the call of President Wilson and accepted the federal position. Mitchell is now the fusion candidate for mayor, having the endorsement of the republicans as well as the support of many independent democrats. Mitchell has always been a democrat. What will happen now with a republican in the mayor's chair is problematical.

The first announcement of Gaynor's death came in a wireless message received by Adolph Adamson, the mayor's secretary.

Mr. Adamson informed Mrs. Gaynor by telephone. She was at her home at St. James, L. I., and collapsed when she heard the news. One of her daughters was with her.

Connected With Ships
Gaynor's friends point out the strange coincidence which connected the Gaynor tragedies with steamships.

It was on board the Kaiser Wilhelm that Gaynor was shot and upon the Baltic that he died. James J. Gallagher, who shot Gaynor on August 9, 1910, died February 3 last, in the New Jersey state hospital for the insane, at Trenton. He conceived that Gaynor had discharged him from the dock department. His delusion was that Gaynor had taken the bread and butter out of his mouth. It was shown that he was utterly insane.

William J. Gaynor was 62 years old, being born on a farm near Whitestown, Oneida county, N. Y., in 1851, of mixed Irish and English ancestry. He was elected mayor of New York in 1909 and was an independent candidate for re-election.

For eight years Gaynor was a justice of the supreme court, elected in 1903 and re-elected in 1907. Twice he declined to accept the democratic nomination for governor of New York and he was mentioned, too, as a democratic presidential candidate.

Gaynor came to Brooklyn in 1873 and did newspaper work while studying law. When he was admitted to

THE BAR HE ABANDONED NEWSPAPER WORK. HIS RISE IN THE LAW WAS RAPID.

Imprisoned Boss

He gained his first prominence by putting John Y. McKane, boss of Coney Island, in prison. McKane was the chief of police of Gravesend and controlled about all the votes down that way. Besides, he had a padded list of several thousand and when Gaynor was elected to the supreme court, he placed the facts about McKane's fraudulent voting in the hands of the governor. McKane and eighteen of his henchmen were sent to state's prison, and that ended boss rule at Coney Island.

Mayor Gaynor was homely in his tastes and for the most part lived at St. James, L. I., where the Gaynors have a veritable farm. He was fond of dogs and always a half dozen were about, while the mayor's pigs and chickens were his great delight. He walked much about the countryside of Long Island and talked to people wherever he found them. At other times he drove about the country in a buggy.

The mayor had a keen sense of humor and a quaint mode of thought and expression. He wrote many letters to officials and citizens and all sorts of people, and for the most part they were filled with humor and with references to the classics in literature and music.

Body Back at Once

Adamson said that arrangements would be made to have the body brought back as quickly as possible. He said if it could be arranged, it might be transhipped to the Cedric at Queenstown this evening. Otherwise, it may be taken aboard the Lusitania, which will sail from Liverpool on Saturday.

"The mayor did not intend to remain abroad more than a few days," said Adamson. "He thought that he might return on the Baltic. His only object was to get a little rest and the benefit of the sea air. He was anxious to get back into the campaign."

Before he sailed Gaynor prepared the following public announcement, which was issued from the city hall after his departure:

"Murphy and the chaps that sat down with him at Delmonico's and gizzled and abused me until their faces were red, were ready to eat me up, I am told, and yet I never did anything to them except what tended to make them look respectable."

"Those hungry and grafting leaders wished to control the heads of those (city) departments. They want a mayor who will appoint their favorites as heads of these departments. And they will get the contracts for everything."

"These miserable political grafters here, and all over the state, now have all the state contracts. The result is the grossest frauds in years."

Four Lean Years

"No wonder they (political leaders) are so ferocious against me. The McCooys and the Foleys and the Murphys and Donohues, and the whole bunch have had four lean and hungry years."

"I did not turn the city over to the spoils of these scoundrels, who have no honest means of making a living. They live by swindling their neighbors out of the hard earned taxes they pay."

"Whether I remain in the mayor's office for four years more or dreadfully hard work concerns the rent payers and the taxpayers more than it concerns me."

Mayor Gaynor was a member of the Catholic church, but for many years he had not been affiliated with the church. According to a high dignitary of the church, the mayor was at odds with the church over a matrimonial matter. He did not withdraw, nor was he excommunicated, but he declined to attend church services. He was twice married and had seven children by his second wife.

GAYNOR'S DEATH BLOW TO TAMMANY

Anti-Murphy Men Will All Be United Back of J. P. Mitchell in Fight Now

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—The death of William J. Gaynor has brought about a situation which threatens the domination of Tammany hall in New York city politics as it has not been threatened in years. This was the opinion expressed in political circles today following the receipt of word of the death of Mayor Gaynor.

With J. Purroy Mitchell on the fusion ticket, the anti-Tammany forces will be united, providing the Hearst and Mitchell factions drop their disagreements, as it appears likely.

The situation was complicated by the refusal of the Hearst Independence league to endorse William A. Prendergast and George McAneny, candidates for comptroller and president of the board of aldermen on the fusion ticket. This resulted in a split in the fusion ranks, as Mitchell insisted that the entire fusion ticket must be endorsed if he was to accept the place at the head of the independence league ticket. But with this warfare settled the issue would be strictly between the united anti-Tammany forces and the Tammany hall, unless another candidate is named in Gaynor's place.

NO ACTION TO PUT DORMITORY HERE

The board of normal school regents in session in Milwaukee yesterday afternoon failed to take any action in regard to the locating of the new normal dormitory promised to La Crosse.

Regent Harrington of Oshkosh introduced a resolution providing for a committee to decide where the dormitory should be located. This met vigorous opposition upon the part of William F. Wolfe, La Crosse, who contended that it was promised to La Crosse at the time the appropriation was made by the legislature.

A proposition to locate a new normal school was not taken up, although Eau Claire is generally conceded to be the site chosen for the school.

TO PROBE VICE ON LAKE BOATS

CHICAGO, Sept. 11.—Charles F. De Woody, federal white slave investigator, today announced that he would begin an investigation of the charges that gross immoralities are practiced on excursion boats running from Chicago to Michigan and Wisconsin cities. Alderman George Pretzel complained to the police that staterooms were rented indiscriminately and that in the bar-room of one of the excursion boats he saw a number of young girls drunk on the tables. The police, having no jurisdiction, referred the complaint to the federal authorities.

Mr. Gowen has officiated at 991 weddings. He wants that of his daughter's to be the thousandth and has sent out a hurry call for eight couples to come to the Grace Reformed church today.

STATE OFFICIALS DODGE A DECISION

New Hampshire Governor and Attorney General Put Thaw Extradition Up to Each Other

EXPECT A BIG LEGAL FIGHT SOON

Habeas Corpus Proceedings This Afternoon First Gun in Battle for Delay

COLEBROOK, N. H., Sept. 11.—Attorneys for Harry K. Thaw, evidently awaiting the arrival of the other Thaw lawyers, today surprised the New York state representatives by not asking Judge Chamberlain for a hearing on Thaw's latest habeas corpus writ. Bernard Jacobs, attorney representing New York, stated shortly before noon that there would be nothing done in the Thaw case until four o'clock this afternoon, when Thaw will be arraigned before Justice of the Peace Carr as a fugitive from justice. It is said that Thaw will not have his habeas corpus plea argued until the state of New Hampshire has taken its initial action.

Fourteen Attorneys.
Thaw is represented by Thomas F. Johnson and Merriam Shurtlee, local lawyers, who are respectively the thirteenth and fourteenth attorneys that he has retained since he was arrested in Canada on Aug. 19.

In the matter of extraditing Thaw at the request of New York, Governor Feltzer said: "It is up to the attorney general what we shall do. I will take his advice."

Attorney General Tuttle said: "It is a matter for the governor alone to decide. I cannot advise him."

Early today the sleepy special policemen, twelve in number, sworn in at Thaw's demand to "keep Jerome from kidnapping him," still patrolled the vicinity of the Monadnock hotel, where Thaw is quartered, while a crowd of early rising citizens looked on open-mouthed and waited to see the prisoner.

Thaw has not been in jail since he was arrested in New Hampshire. Sheriff Drew keeping him in a locked room of the hotel. He excitedly demanded the extra guards near midnight, when he was told Jerome and Kennedy had arrived in Colebrook by special train from Manchester, Vt.

With Thaw, besides the local lawyers, are L. J. Vorhaus, a New York attorney who came from his summer home at Fabyans, N. H., and T. R. E. McInnes of Ottawa, framer of the Canadian immigration law.

Other Thaw lawyers were said to be on their way here from New York, Pennsylvania and Canada. Bernard Jacob of Lancaster, N. H., who brought about Thaw's arrest, represented the New York state attorneys in the habeas corpus hearing.

Held as Fugitive.
Thaw is held on the charge of being a fugitive from New York justice, the accusation being based on the warrant charging bribery and conspiracy, that was issued against him after his escape from Matteawan.

It is certain that Thaw will employ every possible means at the command of the Thaw millions to fight extradition and more perplexing intricacies than those that bedeviled the Canadian legal riot are expected when the prisoner is surrounded by his army of lawyers.

SCHOOLS SHOW NEW PICTURES

The teachers and pupils of the Washburn and Longfellow schools are busy preparing for the exhibition of twenty-two large pictures purchased with the proceeds from the art exhibit which was held here last spring. The pictures are now framed and ready for distribution to the different rooms.

The exhibit is free and the general public is invited to inspect these pictures in the grammar room of the Washburn school, Friday, Sept. 12, from 3 to 6 p. m.

DESIGNER PATENTS MINNESOTA SKIRT

ST. PAUL, Minn., Sept. 11.—The Minnesota slitskirt was copyrighted today at Washington, D. C., by Charles H. Heineman, New York. Heineman designed the skirt. The slitskirt is the outcome of the Minnesota clubwomen's protest against the indecencies of the "split" skirt. The new skirt is two yards wide; it hangs straight and fits snugly about the figure. No drapery or trimming is used, but a broad panel at the back suggests a drapery.

SNAKE VENOM CURE FOR DREAD ILLS?

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 11.—Dr. John T. Jones of New Orleans will shortly announce in the London Lancet that he has discovered a complete cure for tuberculosis, cancer and syphilis. He is now treating patients free to prove his claims. The cure is a blend of snake venom and only one one-hundredth of a grain is administered. Rattlesnake and moccasin venom are included in the blend, which is harmless even to an infant. The cure was discovered accidentally when a rattlesnake bit a sick negro. The latter, although suffering from syphilis and tuberculosis, soon recovered.

PLAN AUTO SHOW FOR FAIR WEEK

No Shelter Available at the Fair Grounds and May Exhibit on Market Square

That an automobile show, with forty makes of cars entered, may be held on the Market square during the week of the La Crosse interstate fair, which will be held here, should accommodations at the fair grounds not be satisfactory, was decided Tuesday night at a meeting of the La Crosse County Retail Automobile Dealers association.

It had been the plan of the dealers of the city and county to give an exhibition at the fair grounds, but difficulty has arisen over a suitable shelter for the machines.

Another meeting of the automobile men will be held Monday night, to decide on a definite place for the show.

Mr. and Mrs. Henning visited Niagara, Toronto and Chicago on their way home. Mr. Henning said today that the eleventh annual encampment of the organization will be held at Louisville, Ky., in 1914.

PREDICT TROUBLE AFTER CRATER TRIP

NAPLES, Sept. 11.—A serious eruption of Vesuvius in the not far distant future was predicted today by Professors Stoltz and Jacob, of the University of Michigan, and Professor Malladra of Naples, who descended to the lowest point in the volcano's crater ever reached.

For eight hours the explorers remained in the bowels of the mountain, making scientific observations, and their descent broke all records. They declared, on ascending, that they obtained data which they said shows conclusively that another great eruption of the volcano is imminent.

NEW HAVEN TRAIN HIT BY FREIGHT

HARTFORD, Conn., Sept. 11.—The north-bound White Mountain Express on the New Haven road was side swiped by a freight train at midnight five miles north of the Wallingford wreck scene. No one was injured, but the sides of the two wooden cars at the front of the train were splintered below the windows. The passengers were aroused by the bump and about 200 of them piled out to see what was the matter.

GLANCING BULLET WOUNDS A GIRL

APPLETON, Wis., Sept. 11.—Lois Roessler, 14, wounded by a bullet that glanced off a target near which she was standing, is in a critical condition today at her home near Hortonville. The missile passed through the girl's neck, narrowly missing the jugular vein.

MOTHER NOT WITH HIM

Mrs. Mary Twedt, mother of Oscar Twedt, who leaped to his death from the deck of the excursion steamer Purchase last Sunday evening, today denied that she had accompanied her son upon the excursion. The tragedy took place when the boat was just below Dresbach on its way back from Winona about 7:30 in the evening.

WINNING HORSE DIES UNDER WIRE

Under the wire and winner in the last heat in the 2:20 pace at the St. Charles fair yesterday afternoon, Corina Wood, owned by John Small, farmer, dropped dead. The horse had stepped the heat in 2:21 1/4.

The death of the pacer was witnessed by Mayor and Mrs. Ori J. Sorensen and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sisson, La Crosse people, who motored to St. Charles for the fair yesterday.

DECIDES SULZER IS NOT GOVERNOR

Ruling on Banker Robin's Case Says Sulzer Cannot Grant Pardon

HOLDS THAT HE IS IMPEACHED

Has No Executive Powers While Awaiting Trial by Legislature

KINGSTON, N. Y., Sept. 11.—Justice Hasbrouck in ruling on the writ of habeas corpus issued in behalf of Joseph G. Robin, the New York banker, today held that William Sulzer was impeached by the legislature and, while awaiting trial, is divested of executive power. Justice Hasbrouck held that in impeaching Sulzer the assembly acted in a judicial capacity and was properly in session. The governor has no power to pardon Robin, the court held. Sulzer issued a pardon for Robin that the action of the assembly might be tested in the courts. The warden at Blackwell's Island penitentiary refused to liberate Robin on Sulzer's order and the banker's attorneys then obtained the writ of habeas corpus on which the ruling was handed down today.

ANNUAL FLOWER SHOW ON TODAY

School Children Display Skill as Gardeners at Public Library Today

The annual flower show given by the children of the public and parochial schools of the city was held today in the large hall at the public library. The show was to have been held in Burns park in the open air, but on account of the rain of the early morning the flowers were taken to the public library. The flowers that were on exhibit at the library today were arranged in bouquets of mixed varieties and of single varieties. They were all raised by the scholars of schools in their yards during the summer. The whole library building was pervaded by the perfume of the blossoms on the second floor.

Schaefer is Judge
Prominent society women in autos called at the children's homes during the early morning, taking the bunches of blossoms to the library where they were put on tables. At 2 o'clock Carl Schaefer of the La Crosse Floral company commenced the judging. Three prizes will be given to each of the fourteen schools showing flowers. Mayor Ori J. Sorensen has offered two handsome prizes for the two bouquets that the judge may select. Miss Gertrude Hogan will present shrubbery to the school showing the best exhibit.

In speaking to the committee in charge of the flowers this afternoon Superintendent of Parks J. H. Forner said that in his opinion the children had improved 75 per cent from the display of last season. Asters, nasturtiums, phlox and the general run of finer garden flowers were in evidence. According to Mr. Schaefer, before he started to pick the winners, they are all excellent. The committee in charge of the flowers were: Mrs. F. G. Cowles, Mrs. J. P. Yerle, Mrs. C. B. Smith and Mrs. H. C. Hart.

THE TRIBUNE'S Daily Short Story

HIRAM AND HANNAH

By CATHARINE COOPE.

(Copyright, 1913, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)
Had Hiram Wood spent less time scribbling and more time learning to make a living he would no doubt have been a benedict and Hannah Dane a matron. As it was, and since there were no funds with which to build a dove cote, Hannah decided to leave the village of her birth and seek a livelihood in the city.
She was more than sorry to leave Hiram and equally sorry to leave the little village newspaper for which she had written society columns during the last two years. But Hannah had been offered a much better position on one of the city papers. The salary was splendid and the prospects even more so.

The strange part of the situation was that both Hiram and Hannah were clever. The girl realized that her country beau had more than a little of the intellect that promises well for the success of a writer. She herself was unimaginative, yet her judgment was good and she could turn out mechanical work with lightning rapidity.

"I will interview all the editors, Hiram," she said at parting; "the personal talk goes so much further than letters. I know they will be sending you checks within a few months and then—" A soft blush finished her thought.

"It will mean more to me than you can think of, dear," Hiram told her, and felt that the whole world was leaving him when the train puffed out of the village station, carrying Hannah away from him.

The girl dashed a handkerchief across deep violet eyes and sighed. The boy was very dear to her.

"I will just make the magazine editors buy his stories," she determined and patted the small box that was filled to the brim with fiction by Hiram David Wood.

It did not take her long to wedge her way into one of the many grooves open to clever journalists. The first few weeks were more or less trying, but the fresh, healthy girl from the country soon won the hearts of her newspaper associates and the path began to grow roses even as the country gardens had.

When she had replenished her wardrobe and selected a suit of brown and a natty little hat to go with it, Hannah felt ready to see the editors in the sky-scraper offices.

"One should always make a good appearance," she decided with a little smile of thankfulness that she was good to look upon. Her personality was one of those rare ones given to the most blessed. She had a smile and an air of friendliness for all who came within the range of her vision. Hiram had often been jealous of her magnetism.

"You have everything," he had often said to her.

"You possess a great brain," she had always consoled him; "your work will live long after my smile."

The first editor whom she approached with the best of Hiram's stories received the shock of that smile when he was sitting at his great desk editing one of the manuscripts that had passed through the literary door.

He looked at Hannah from beneath the green shade over his eyes and returned her smile. The subeditor across the table realized that he too had smiled inwardly if not outwardly. Hannah was a pleasure to look upon.

"I have some very good stories," she said quickly.

"Your own?" queried the editor.

"No. My—a very dear friend—has written them." Hannah felt the blush that both men admired and continued hurriedly, "I want very much to have you read them—for him." She put the manuscripts in to the hand he extended.

After a quick glance over the pages the editor put them aside and looked again at Hannah.

"They seem promising. I will read them and let you hear from me."

"Shall I call for them, or will you send them?" Another smile hovered over the editorial office—a pause, subtle and pregnant, lingered for the space of a second.

"You may call—Friday—I might want to talk with you about them."

The editor's words were hurried and he did not glance at the subeditor. "Come about 11." He followed Hannah to the door, and when she had gone went back to his desk.

A moment of silence followed, then the subeditor grinned.

"Peach—isn't she?" he commented.

"Rose is more like it," was the answer. "I hope for her sake Hiram David Wood's stories are good. She seems anxious." A very slight irritation was evident in John Danvers' voice.

For a base second he knew that by refusing the stories the wedding of the girl would at least be held back. The thought was ridiculous as it was sudden. He picked up the stories and found them acceptable.

During six months following checks, steadily augmenting in value, found their way from the cashiers of numerous magazines to Hiram Wood. His stories, thanks to Hannah, had found a big market and the manuscript box had all but disgorged its contents. Also Hiram had sent on many more, and a new softness and beauty of touch marked them.

Hannah was delighted with her work and had made a conquest of more than one editor. Often she had lunched or had tea with them, and New York grew steadily in its fascination for her. She began to fear her return to her native village, and, more than all, she feared to tell Hiram that she was in no way certain of her love for him. She could no longer deny that Hiram was not the man to make her happy, nor was he the man whom she desired to marry. Hannah blushed, and a little wistful smile played across her features. It was seldom she allowed herself to picture the man whom she did want to marry—the one whom she loved with all her heart. And he?

"He thinks I am engaged to Hiram, but I know he loves me even if he does not tell me so."

Two days later Hannah received another story from Hiram. And there was a letter—a letter that one would expect to bring sadness to the eyes of the girl who read it. Instead, a smile deep and thankful grew steadily in Hannah's heart. Her way was very clear now, but how—how—could she tell the other man about it?

Suddenly she decided to act as the heroine would in fiction. She left her letter from Hiram within the folds of his story and sent it to the other man. The other man was the first editor whom she had interviewed.

After that Hannah waited results.

In the afternoon she heard from John Danvers. Could she come down about 5 o'clock? He wanted to talk with her about Hiram Wood and one other. Hannah went.

Danvers was a bit nervous when she entered his office, and the girl only smiled. The editor began without preface.

"You left a letter in this manuscript and I read it," he told her, and his face was a shade white.

Hannah looked quickly up with her appealing eyes.

"That is the reason I left it in," she acknowledged with an adorable blush. "If you had not read it, how could I have let you know?"

"You could just simply have told me that Hiram was married and that you wanted me to tell you what has been in my heart for nearly six months—could you not, dear?"

Hannah shot a swift glance at him, before he reached her side.

"Hiram is married and I want you to tell me," she began obediently.

"Dear," he repeated, and took her within his arms to tell her the rest of the story.

FASHIONS FOR EARLY AUTUMN

By MAY MANTON

This season there is so much variety and so much that is beautiful offered both in style and materials that it is easy to satisfy every demand. For the street, rough finished fabrics are given the preference and a great many wools are woven in velours finish while silk velvets will be extensively used.

MAY MANTON'S FASHION NOTES.

WITH cabled reports reaching us from Paris each day, it is impossible not to feel that important matters are afoot and that such grave questions as the style of the skirt, the length of the coat and the cut of the bodice are under consideration. If signs are to be read aright, we are to wear charming costumes both upon the street and within doors. The general slender silhouette remains but we are to be broader between the hips and knees than heretofore and that breadth means greater freedom of movement, allows drapery and does away with many of the unfortunate results that have caused thinking people to shudder a bit and to ponder as to what may be the result of a passing whim. Coats of the dressy order are to be much cutaway at the front and that line is always a pretty one. For the useful suit, we will wear a great many belted coats and the long waisted or Balkan line remains. Fabrics are absolutely bewitching. No other word adequately expresses their charm. The wool velours or velvet finished wool is actually superb in the depth of its color. The brocaded and broché fabrics are a very delight both in color and design. We have not only all silk and all wool but a great many combinations of the two that bring about fabrics ideal for the gown to wear within doors and also upon the street top coats.

So many wonderful colors are being shown it is hard to say that one is more fashionable than the other but, from Paris, comes the dictum that yellow in all its shades is to be a favorite, that green is to be extensively worn, that reddish brown and mahogany tints are to be especially smart. Brocaded velvets and metal embroidered silks give actually superb effects. They are to be extensively used for the waistcoats that will make an important feature of handsome costumes, for girdles and for the various accessories of the kind.

AN interesting and somewhat important departure in matters of afternoon dress is found in the one-piece or semi-princess costume with the blouse of contrasting color as well as material. Apparently the Cubist and Futurist schools have had a certain influence and there are almost barbaric contrasts shown. A gown of black crêpe de chine is, for example, made with a bodice of Chinese yellow crêpe that shows tiny little violets embroidered in their natural colors. This bodice is in kimono style with the almost inevitable lace frill completing the neck edge but there is a wide girdle of the crêpe de chine that really forms part of the bodice and gives the costume idea. The black gown is comparatively simple to handle, for any bright color can be used in contrast, but one sees purple and yellow combined and various color combinations that call to mind the need for care. The artist makes a success of such things and, when he plans the gown, it is a thing of beauty. It will be unfortunate if, in the attempt to copy, merely bizarre effects result. Whenever there are combinations, the danger exists.

SASHES are to be much worn that they might almost make a letter of themselves. They are made from the most wonderful ribbons and they are knotted in almost every conceivable way. Ribbons are shown in marvelous brocaded velvet effects, in the most wonderful weavings of metal threads, in flowered designs that we know to be printed, not painted, but that must owe their origin to the artist of consummate skill. They are shown in stripes that are marvels of beautiful color and, indeed, an almost every known variation of silk and of velvet. Sashes make an important use to which they are to be put but ribbons also are available for the narrow little waistcoats that are so charming, for collars, cuffs and similar accessories of fashionable dress.

AN exceedingly smart costume for afternoon visits and occasions of the kind is made of dark blue charmeuse satin with a very short open jacket and this jacket is worn over a quite separate waist coat of brocade in really brilliant colors. These waistcoats are already offered for sale. They can be bought separately and they make admirable additions to the wardrobe. They are made of brocaded silk and of flowered silk; they are made of brocaded velvet and, indeed, of almost every handsome material suggestive of the Louis XVI. period from which the waistcoat idea is obtained. Since they can be adjusted under any coat, they are very practical little garments as well as fashionable one and often the addition of one will make the summer suit up-to-date and, at the same time, provide the slight additional warmth that will be needed when autumn days have arrived.

REPORTS from Paris have it that the short wired tunic is likely to have some vogue for evening wear. It terminates just a little below the hip line and is wired to stand well away from the figure. Such examples as have been seen on this side of the water are far from beautiful. They do not give beautiful lines and they break the figure in an unfortunate way. It hardly seems probable that they will be given any extended vogue but it is difficult to be certain and unwise to make statements. Experience teaches that women will adopt almost any whim if it be rightly heralded and if the outside hoop skirt effect is declared correct by the powers that be, it undoubtedly will be worn. Recently some of our well known artists have been publishing criticisms or discussions of the prevailing fashions of dress. From their point of view, it is claimed that the softly draped skirts are ideal. Unquestionably they are beautiful when well made. The short little tunic only spoils the lines of the figure. Since we are only reaching the stage of perfection in drapery, let us hope that it will remain.

EVERY change of seasons excites more or less interest in new fashions but the autumn somewhat more for the summer is likely to have depleted the wardrobe and made new costumes a necessity as well as a pleasure. This season there is so much variety and so much that is beautiful offered both in style and materials that it is easy to satisfy every demand. For the street, rough finished fabrics are given the preference and a great many wools are woven in velours finish while silk velvets will be extensively used. Within doors, all the crêpes and soft satins are essentially smart and there are wonderfully beautiful broché fabrics that combine silk with wool. Bulgarian influences have not yet spent themselves and there will be a note of bright and even barbaric color found in many costumes and the sash that is wound around the figure is to be extensively worn. Checks and plaids are to be fashionable and real Scotch plaid will be largely used as trimming for plain colors. There are a great many silks in Oriental and semi-Oriental colors too that make attractive accessories. Round and slightly open necks continue to be the favorites and sleeve lengths allow absolute freedom of choice.

THE long loose coat illustrated makes an exceedingly practical as well as fashionable garment. It is somewhat novel in the making, the side portions being short while the front portions are extended to lap over them and form pockets. The model is an excellent one for general wear, also for motoring and traveling. As it can be rolled open to form revers or buttoned up tightly about the neck, it suits all weathers. As shown here, it is made of one of the new striped materials combining rough with plain surface and the trimming is plain cloth. The new checkings include various fabrics and some extremely handsome ones, among them striped velours that is exceedingly rich in effect. All brown, tan and mahogany shades are in the height of style and they make ideal colors for the coat of hard wear.

THE one-piece or semi-princess gown is an undoubted favorite for indoor wear and for street wear beneath the top coat that is likely to be so much used. The one illustrated shows a little vest with the pointed portion below the belt that is to be found in many of the newest and smartest models. As shown here, it is made from silk éponge in taupe shade and the trimming portions are of silk in Bulgarian colors. The skirt is made in three pieces that includes a little panel at the front that is novel. For such a gown can be used crêpe, either silk or silk and wool, messaline, charmeuse satin and, for simpler needs, the fine French serge that is such a standby, with almost any pretty contrasting color for the collar and vest. In this case, the panel is made of matching silk but it could be of the trimming material with good effect. Almost any clever woman can copy a design in different ways. The panel of this one is especially susceptible of variation. Blue serge with trimming of Scotch plaid surah would make a handsome gown and one in the height of style.

DRAPED skirts are all-important. Some of the newest are drawn right up at the front but drapery of all sorts is in vogue and, since all the fashionable materials are soft and pliable, they make an excellent effect. The little girl's dress illustrated is treated in two quite different ways. It will be found appropriate for almost any fashionable material, the simple child-like silks and wool fabrics that are shown in exquisite colors and numberless novelties that it is difficult to mention. The skirt is made in four pieces with the edges overlapped. The little guimpe portion is essentially dainty. In one of the pictures, it is shown made of all-over lace and, in the other, of muslin with strips of insertion. It would be pretty made of dotted Swiss muslin or of chiffon if the material of the dress allows its use.

IN spite of its very dressy and even elaborate effect, the young girl's frock is made with a simple four piece skirt that is drawn up at the front in form drapery and to allow the use of a panel. The blouse is a perfectly plain one but the collar and the wide box plait trim it sufficiently. As shown here, the material is a broché crêpe combining silk and wool. The collar is of fine white batiste edged with lace and the panel of plain crêpe plaited. For the dressy afternoon frock, no more fashionable combination of materials could be suggested but some girls undoubtedly will prefer charmeuse satin and that material will be beautiful treated in that way or, if something simpler is wanted, the frock could be made of plain crêpe de chine with the collar and panel of charmeuse. Silk is used for so many purposes in these days that it is not over-elaborate for simple afternoon frocks and the same material in a darker and a lighter color is found available for the practical, useful dress and the party frock of occasional service.

Chicago Grain Review

CHICAGO, Sept. 11.—Northwestern wheat receipts continued to grow larger today, the Liverpool cable was easier and the wheat market had an easier tone at the opening, starting 1/4 to 3/4c lower. However, the trade was quick to take advantage of any decided decline and in the forenoon trading September futures firmed a fraction. December lost an additional 3/4c.

Corn started with a rush of selling on a break in prices at Liverpool, September losing 3/4c at the start. The market showed some firmness later but at noon had recovered only a fraction of the early loss.

Despite the weakness in the other markets, oats held steady today for the forenoon at closing prices yesterday.

In the afternoon a sharp break in cash grain prices was an important factor. The decline ranged all the way from 3/4 to 1 cent and affected all futures.

Provisions eased off in the afternoon with the break in the coarse grains and were weak at the close.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—The Senators made it three straight by winning from the Cleveland Naps yesterday afternoon, 3 to 1. Groom and Gregg were the principals in a pitchers' battle but Groom's support was air tight while errors behind Gregg paved the way for both of Washington's runs. ### Watching The Scoreboard

BY HAL SHERIDAN.
A few more days like yesterday and it will all be over but the alibi framing so far as the chase of the Naps and Phillies for the pennant is concerned.

With Groom holding Cleveland to five hits Washington downed the Naps yesterday and thus failed to gain on the Athletics, who lost to Chicago. This also brings Washington up to within striking distance of second place.

Starting on the easy end of their western schedule the Phillies were downed by Mr. Doak of the Cardinals while the Giants increased their lead to 8 1/2 games by beating the Pirates. As to odds on the world's series it has been remarked that they are laying four to one on the Athletics in Matteawan.

Nap Rucker was in top form against the Chicago Cubs and let them down with five hits and one run.

The Cincinnati Reds jumped on Hub Perdue as soon as he appeared and collected five runs and four hits in the first inning. Rudolph then took up the battle for Boston, but it was too late.

The Yankees won't climb out of the cellar during the present series with the Browns. Pulling six errors in the field, they blew yesterday's game, which blasts their hopes for the time being.
